Cyclical Decorations, External Envelope Repair & Replacement
Works and External Works
October 2014

We focus on the environmental and social issues where we can make a real difference and where we can strengthen our relationships with our customers, supply chain partners and the local community.

Our team is really proud of the added value we have delivered on this project, including:

Valuing the Community

Providing training and employment opportunities for local people and engaging with local schools including South Ockendon Academy and South Essex College to help inspire students by arranging work experience placements and site visits.

Key Highlights

10

students completed a short course in Remedy and Safety

15

students completed the Building Futures programme

Improving the Environment

Clearly displaying the site environmental policy and using sustainable materials that can be recycled. Adopting working methods to ensure minimum disturbance for neighbours and writing newsletters to inform residents of environmental performance and issues.

41/50

overall score in the 'Comprehensive Construction Scheme'

98%

of waste materials recycled

Creating a Legacy

1600 community benefit hours created through the restoration of the Tilbury War Memorial and £250 contributed from Wates Giving towards the costs of refurbishing the kitchen at Langland and Nottage Close Community Hall.

£34k

donating through in-kind investment during the project including additional hours awarded by Wates employees

over

£78.6k

amount of costs directly spent on providing added value in the local community including money spent on resources and materials

Practical Training

SAM MORRIS

Multidisciplinary creative, designer, & aspiring art director.

Hi!

I'm Sam. About 10 years ago I decided I'd try and make all that time doodling in my notebooks worthwhile, and jumped into the world of Art & Design.

Since then I've applied myself to various projects, helping companies to build brands, win multi-million pound bids, promote gigs, even sell a few thousand christmas t-shirts.
